Headquarters Open on Bleecker St. With Speeches, Beer and Seth Low in Prospect—Brown, Smith and Dr. Stella solid for Reform-Landlord Happy.

One more bubble simmered to the surface of the local political pot yesterday when young Mr. J. Brice Gordon Rinehart of Harvard and the Bowery made his formal appearance at the new headquarters which he has opened in a vacant store opposite Mills Hotel, No. 1, thus confirming the rumor that Mr Rinehart is still running for the Republican leadership of the new Thoid Assembly Distric' against the Hon. Jimmie Haveacigar March, the present leader. When The Sun reporter learned from Mr. J. B. G. Rinehart, some time ago from Mr. J. B. G. Rinehart some time ago that he had met a Mr. Smith and a gentleman named Brown and some other voters during evening strolls along the Bowery, and so had spread the news among a select circle that he is out for the leadership, it was naturally supposed then that the only thing left for the candidate to do was to meet some of the voters in the western end

Consequently the news of the opening of the West Side headquarters did not come as a surprise to the friends of Mr. J. Brice Gordon Rinehart, all of whom knew that he isout for the leadership. But the guests of the Mills Hotel across the street and the storekeepers in the neighborhood are burning with curiosity to learn the meaning of the pretty rows of nice new chairs, the American and Italian flags, the picture of a smooth faced youthful looking person in the window and the cooling apparatus, consisting of an electric fan that sends a breeze across a lithograph of Vice-President Fairbanks and then spreads the ice cold air through the store.

If the curiosity continues to increase as it did yesterstay, somebody will be sent in to find out what it is all about.

Inside the headquarters last evening were yards of Italian bunting, pictures of Rine-bart, Roosevell and Fairbanks, a glistening new broom, a can of white paint in a corner and Henry Eggleston Augenthaler, who sat behind a new kitchen table and announced that he was J. B. G. Rinehart's secretary. Henry Eggleston Augenthaler occupied a cane bottomed chair and whistled and whittled. The reporter found several of the new deal chairs vacant and claimed one as there didn't seem to have been any advance sale of seats.

"I'm in the carpet line myself and ain't ever been to Harvard," began H. E. Augenthaler, "and just now I'm working around here for Mr. Rinehart, doing just what you

Mr. Augenthaler put his feet among the pens and ink bottle as he spoke, rolled a cigarette and talked politics.

There's a lot of ignorant Eyetalians over on the East Side where Jimmie March lives," he remarked, "but over here the Eyetalians has some education. Over here they know as well as me that March, Looie Hoeninger and Odell is a lot of hot air merchants, and so J. G. B. Rinehart's the man they'll vote for, see?

"Mr. Rinehart comes down every night most and sits around and looks over the situation. He was here last night for an hour or two. Some friends of mine dropped in to see what it was all about and they made quite a crowd. Rinehart is getting acquainted now pretty well over here. No, I wouldn't like to name his friends around bere-it wouldn't be right to them or me."

All this time J. Brice Gordon Rinehart of Harvard, the Bowery and Bleeckerstreet was working his way from his occasional room in the Capitol Hotel, at the corner of Houston street and the Bowery, to his new Bleecker street headquarters, to his new Bleecker street headquarters, and when he did not arrive on schedule time his delay was accounted for on the supposition that progress was difficult through cheering crowds. But he finally managed to reach the door and enter under the horseshoe tacked to the transom frame. The headquarters aren't formally opened yet," explained young J. Brice Gordon Rinehart as he showed the reporter about the store. But next Saturday or the week after we'll open with a good time for the boys. You see there's an extra room in the back which we can also use when the place gets crowded and it will be a great place for a bar."

place for a bar."

It was then learned that the voters will have the time of their lives at the opening with a band and cigars and probably some beer and Seth Low as chasers. Mr. J. B. G. Rinehart hasn't asked Mr. Low to speak as yet nor can he answer definitely about the beer. Both these affairs will be attended voung Mr. Rinehart, blushing, "but per-haps it would be well to have beer. Pray give me your candid opinion on the matter." It was Mr. Mike the Bite, who on another cocasion branded Mr. J. Brice Gordon Rine-hart as a "milk drinker" and therefore "a mistake."

hart as a "milk drinker" and therefore "a mistake."

"You see I don't believe in spending money recklessly on persons of whom I know absolutely nothing as to their past lives or history, especially so long before election." said Mr. Rinehart in conclusion.

"Are you going to give an outing before election." the reporter asked, glancing at a faming poster in a window down the street announcing the excurison of the Big Tim crowd to Donnelly's Grove.

"No, because outings appeal only to the women and children. I have other ideas on that sort of thing. But I'm thinking of getting out buttons with my picture or name on them. Don't you think that would be very effective?"

"Undoubtedly. The children like to wear them and buttons will help to spread the news around the district that you're running," said a listener.

"I believe so," said Mr. J. B. G. Rinehart.
"But, do you know that I'm confident that I am just as strong around this neighborhood as I am along the Bowery. I get around here in the evenings and meet a lot of them. Do you know Simon Fischler, the tailor? He's a friend of mine, but, unfortunately, he has moved out of this district. Then there are lots of Harvard men that come to me from uptown and offer their services, but I never met a college man yet, that knew a thing about politics. Really, they're laughable.

"Some time ago a Harvard man that that knew a thing about politics. Really, they're laughable.

"Some time ago a Harvard man that speaks five languages went over to Jacob Lutz's saloon on Houston street with me to address the voters. He spoke eloquently for almost an hour on the life and work of Charles W. Elliot, president of Harvard, and I venture to say there, wasn't a voter in the audience that was even interested.

"Then this Republican practice of speaking from automobiles is all wrong, declared J. B. G. Rinehart. "I spoke over on the Bowery during one campaign from a wagon, but the crowd broke the meeting up. I was introduced as 'a coal heaver that has worked his way up,' but the Bowery yelled 'You don't look it,' and interfered with the speech. Of course, I was never a coal heaver. I'm from Greene county, Pa. Cummins of Iowa comes from the same place and he'll be our next President.

FIGHT OF HIS LIFE FOR MARCH | graft from one crowd to another, don't you | DISROBED TO DROWN HERSELF

graft from one crowd to another, don't you think?"

The reporter semarked that while there's life there's hope.

"But this thing of strolling around till late in the evening to make oneself known to the voters is weakening, though I feel that I'm getting stronger all the time," said Mr. J. B. G. Rinehart hopefully. "Since I saw you last I've had Dr. Stella in here, a very amiable chap."

Secretary Henry Eggieston Augenthaler says that he hopes things will become positively lively after the headquarters are formally opened with cigars, speeches, beer and Seth Low. The rent for the store is $100 a month, but Mr. Rinehart feels that he has been amply repaid for any expense to which he has been put, owing to his having met Dr. Stella, who, he says, is a delightful character. Mr. Brown and Mr. Smith of the Bowery and Dr. Stella-of the West Side make three voters now that are known to be solid for Rinehart and if Simon Fischler, the tailor, had not moved out of the district he might be 'included also.

The reporter, having learned that the cigarbox on the deal table was filled with rubber bands, went over to see the Hon. Jimmie Haveacigar March.

"Opened headquarters on the have a cigar—west side, eh?", caueried, the Hon. Jimmie. "Well, that's fine for the landlord. The more in the fight the merrier. If it wasn't for Roosevelt insisted that I run. Have another cigar—put 'am in your pockst."

Nevertheless, Mr. J. Brice Gordon Rinehart's friends on Bryant Park South'say that long before the primaries, the old aries of "O—o—ch Rinehart!" and "We want-a da Rinehart!" will be as common around Bleecker street as they now are at Harvard. And since the rumor of the coming campaign, buttons have filtered through the neighborhood. It is said, to be a common sight to see groups of ragged little olive skinned rootars gather of an evening in Washington Square, where Coach Tony Belladonna, who is to have the button distribution privilege, teaches them the Harvard yell which runs: "Viva-viva-viva! Da Harvards!"

Democratic Conventions in Broome and Tioga Counties Declare for Him. BINGHAMTON, July 14.—The Democratic county and Assembly convention to-day nstructed its three delegates to the State convention for W. R. Hearst for Governor. The three are: County Chairman W. W. McKenzie. The county and Assembly nominations were left with a committee of five, to be decided upon later. The delegates informally expressed a unanimous opinion that the renomination of County Judge Robert S. Parsons, which will be made by the Republicans on August 4, should be indorsed.

OWRGO, July 14.—The Tioga county Democratic convention this afternoon unanimously adopted resolutions indorsing W. R. Hearst for the nomination for Governor, and elected delegates to the State and other conventions. The State delegates are instructed to vote as a unit on all questions, and to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of "the tried, true and incorruptible William Randolph Hearst for the office of Governor."

Amsterdam, N. Y., July 14.—Hearst representatives reached Montgomery county to-day and are stopping in this city. Next week they will organize a municipal ownership league in Amsterdam as well as in other parts of the county. Some of the more influential Democrats of the county are opposed to the Hearst movement, but the rank and file are enthusiastic for Hearst, and it was said tonight by prominent Democrats that the coming county convention would probably indorse Hearst for Governor.

M. E. INGALLS FOR BRYAN. Says Nebraskan Has Broadened and Deepened and Is a Man of Destiny.

CINCINNATI, July 14 .- M. E. Ingalls, hairman of the board of directors of the Big Four, returned to-day from four months spent abroad as chairman of the American Civic Federation commission.

He was asked if he had been correctly quoted in despatches from New York to the effect that he was for Bryan and believed the Nebraskan would be the next President of the United States.

"I do think he will be the next President."

cratic candidate and the next President," said Mr. Ingalis. "It is a long time off and many things may happen, but under present conditions I think Mr Eryan is the man.

"He has deepened and broadened since ten years ago, and he is a man of destiny."

Mr Ingalls said the report of the federation commission would not be forthcoming before October, and perhaps not then.

THE SUN'S POLITICAL FORECAST Republicans in Montgomery County Read It With Much Interest.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., July 14.—The editorial prediction made by THE SUN to-day that the next Governor of the State of New York will be a Democrat, and that the next Governor of the State will be the next President of the United States is causing much comment among THE SUN'S Mohawk Vally readers and particularly in this city. Vally readers and particularly in this city. A leading Republican and officeholder in the Mohawk Valley said to-day that he believed that the view taken by The Sun will come to pass, as it is apparent to many Republicans that the so called Platt-Odell alliance is for the purpose of preventing the renomination of Gov. Higgins. In this part of the State, however, the sentiment is strongly in favor of the renomination of Gov. Higgins and neither Platt nor Odell can change it.

NAME NICHOLLS FOR CONGRESS. Mine Workers' District President, a Republican, Nominated by Democrats. SCRANTON, Pa., July 14 .- T. J. Nicholle, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, was this afternoon nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Tenth district to oppose S. H. Dale. A telegram has been received from National President John Mitchell saying that he is willing that Mr. Nicholls stand for this office.

The joke is that Nicholls has always been counted a Republican in his home ward in this city. He is in Europe attending a labor gathering and has not been communicated with. It is thought here he will not accept the nomination.

"I'm against Odell, but I don't suppose that statement coming from a Republican leader would be a matter of general interest, would it?"

J. Brice Gordop Rinehart was assured that anything coming from a Harvard graduate was a matter of general interest.

"Well, you can quote me as saying authoritatively that the Sullivans are back of Jimmie March. Hearst, I think, is almost if not quite as strong now as Tim Sullivan, and as for Odell, he's down and out. Still, I think there is just as much chance for graft left as there ever was. All this so-called reform is merely a shifting of the YOUNG WOMAN LEAVES TWO ODD NOTES TO TWO MEN.

She Wandered Down an East River Pier at Noon, Took off Her Garments and Jumped In-Wouldn't Be Saved With a Rope-News for Rellly and Parsons

A young woman, whose identity the police could not learn, jumped into the river at the foot of East Twenty-second street yesterday and was drowned. She walked down the long pier of the New England Navigation Company at the noon hour when the men who work along the docks had knocked off for dinner. Some of these men were sitting along the string-pieces, and there were also some young men who pass most of their leisure along the waterfront. A number of boys were in swimming north of the Twenty-first street pier.

The woman would not have attracted much attention by going upon the pier, as there is a recreation pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth street and the presence of girls and women on adjoining piers is not unusual. But this woman's behavior soon caused the men, young and old, to

Cap'n Abe Nelson of the coal barge Erebus was sitting on the stern of his vessel taking his noontide smoke when the woman came down and began to disrobe within a few yards of where he was sitting. He had been watching the boys splashing about the water, and he supposed the woman was about to go in bathing too, and had a bathing costume underneath her street clothing So he watched her take off her laced shoes, white stockings and white striped petticoat. He turned his head for a moment, when only a single undergarment remained. The next instant there was a splash in the water. The young woman had jumped in. After going down she came to the surface again.

"Throw her a rope!" shouted Cap'n McCormack of the Standard Oil lighter No. 24; which was off a little distance. McCormack had also been watching the young woman.

Nelson threw a rope to her as she was floundering about in the water, but she refused to take hold. The captain coaxed her to grasp the rope and be saved, but she would not do so. Walter Johnson, a young man who lives at 2457 Second avenue, got a boathook and reaching down caught the woman by the single garment she wore. The fabric would not hold, and the woman went down and was seen no more.

Then the police were notified and took possession of her clothing. In the pocket of her skirt were found two notes poorly written in lead pencil. One read as follows:

Well. Frank Reilly and Bill Parsons, you

Well, Frank Reilly and Bill Parsons, you are two fine laddies.

This was the other note: Bill Parsons, Georgie is yours and the lost baby is Frank Reilly's. You send me to hell and Parsons the millionaire.

There was no signature.

Some of the men about the dock spent the afternoon grappling for the body, but failed to recover it. A tall woman, who was dressed in black, went to the pier and showed considerable anxiety when she inquired if the body had been found. She remained there several hours watching the searchers, but she did not explain the cause of her anxiety.

Detective Kenny of the East Twenty-second street station house said he had beard that the dead woman visited a First avenue saloon and had several drinks before going to the pier.

FOUR MURDERED IN THEIR BEDS.

Father, Mether, Son and Daughter Supposed to Have Been Killed for Revenge.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., July 14 .- Isaac Rowan county, and his wife, aged 43, and nine-year-old son and seven-year-old daughter were murdered in their home a mile east of Barbers Junction this morning. Five negroes, four men and one woman, are under arrest.

Two daughters, 18 and 16 years old, were sleeping upstairs. They were awakened by smoke from below, the murderers having set fire to the house. The girls descended to awaken their father and mother, and on reaching their room found their heads crushed. The daughters managed to carry the dead bodies from the house and extinguish the flames. Then they ran to a neighbor and told of the tragedy. A train despatcher wired the Sheriff of

Rowan county, and in a few hours several officers with bloodhounds were on the

SUICIDE WAS CONVICT LAWYER.

Man Who Shot Himself in Hotel Belmont Identified as Jacob M. Birnbaum.

Coroner Harburger decided yesterday that the man who killed himself in the Hotel Belmont on Friday was Jacob M. Birnbaum, the lawyer whose conviction for grand larceny in the second degree, defrauding a woman client for whom he had won a damage suit against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, was affirmed on Thursday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Birnbaum was known as the "king of the ambulance chasers" because of his original habit of drumming up bu siness by following up the accident slips posted at Police Head-to take aboard the First Battalion of the New York Naval Militia, which will ordise for a week. The squadron will be joined off the Maine coast by the battle ships Kearsarge and the Kentucky.

On August 15 the West Virginia, the Colorado, the Maryland and the Pennsylvania will be detached so that they may prepare for sailing for the Asiatic station, but the battleships Connecticut and Louisiana will e added to the fleet. Then, in October, the Ohio will come from the Far East and Admiral Evans will have in his command sixeen battleships and armored cruisers-the trongest American fleet ever assembled.

The main war problem to be worked out this summer is to be that of getting the fleet in mimic action without signals. The flagship will be supposedly under attack, her masts shot away and her wireless apparatus

AFTER LAND GRAFTERS. Secretary Hitchcock to Begin Further

Investigations in Oregen. WASHINGTON, July 14 .- Secretary Hitchcock has taken steps to institute a further investigation of sileged land fraud cases in Oregon. He has ordered the use of the dragnet and expects to catch a number of prominent officials who have thus far escaped indictment in connection with the cases, the proscution of which resulted in the conviction of the late Senator Mitchell and Representative Williamson of Oregon. It is said that the Secretary has beens rompted to order a renewal of the investigation by an interview with Senator Fulton of Oregon upon his return to Portland after the adjournment of Congress. The of Oregon upon ms return to Portain after the adjournment of Congress. The Benator was quoted as severely criticising Secretary Hitchcook and the Administration, and among other things referred to him as "an old fogy." The published interview got back East and was sent to the Becretary where he is spending his summer in New England. Shortly after this the decision to prosecute a further inquiry into the Oregon land caces was announced. Senator Fulton and Secretary Hitchcook have not been on friendly terms since the prosecution of the case was begun. The Senator is said to have expressed the opinion that Representative Williamson was being persecuted. During the past session Senator Fulton refused to go to the Interior Department and there were several clashes between him and the Secretary over appointments affecting Oregon.

It is said that the Secretary believes that there are frauds which have not yet been uncovered, and that he expects to implicate several men in high positions. It is saik that Secret Service Agent J. FEUD MURDER TRIAL TO JURY. Last Testimony Presented in the Harris Callahan Case.

BEATTYVILLE, Ky., July 14.—The Hargis -Callahan trial for the murder of J. B. Marcum is near an end. The rebuttal evidence was heard to-day and the instructions given to the jury.

Two others of the accused were placed on the witness stand by the defence to-day, they being John Smith and John Abner, who, according to the assertion of the Commonwealth, were interested in the con-spiracy to murder Marcum and were with Curtis Jett, the assassin of James Cockrell and W. Asbury Spicer, the assassin of Dr.

and W. Asbury Spicer, the assassin of Dr. Cox.

The defence introduced many witnesses to-day, impeaching the character of various Commonwealth witnesses, but at the close it would appear that the Commonwealth has a strong case, the evidence being circumstantial, but supported by many witnesses and one confession, that of Asbury Spicer. Abner and Smith made general denials, as did the defendante, Hargis, Callahan, French and A, H. Hargis.
